OUR IGNORANCE

THIS REFERS TO the article, 'Indigo boy, my child' (IE, May 10). The hardship that an individual with disability has to go through is almost unimaginable. If a child is autistic, it doesn't mean that she is lacking. It is perhaps due to our inability to understand how they express themselves this we demean them. The Indigo staff should have been sensitised and had more empathy.

EMPATHY NEEDED

THIS REFERS TO the editorial, 'Flying low (IE, May 10). Sadly, this is neither the first nor last time when a specially-abled person has faced an ordeal, as with the Indigo flight. We are not sensitive enough to co-exist with atypical people and understand their agonies. IndiGo, which is otherwise the best performing airline in India, should have handled this matter more sensitively and pragmatically Though its CEO has apologised over social media, the damage is done. Hopefully the three-member committee formed by
